A Note From Pastor Mark

Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

The families we were born into have rituals and expectations that everyone knows. What are the spoken and unspoken expectations of your family? What do you feel you must do as a member of your family?

We are adopted into the family of God through baptism. As we live into the Word of God, we learn the expectations of being a member of God's family, too. As a member of God's family, what do you hold yourself accountable for? What do you think God will hold you accountable for?

Over these summer months we are discussing what it means to be synced up to God's grace in the world. To live out our baptismal vows so that Jesus doesn't become for us a nice thought but Jesus becomes a practice in our everyday lives.

In Matthew 25:31-46 we read... "When the Son of Man comes in his glory, he will sit on his glorious throne. All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate the believers from the unbelievers. He will say to the believers, come inherit the kingdom prepared for you because you have been faithful servants."

We struggle as members of God's family to do the right thing. We question whether our participation in this family even makes a difference. There are those who have so much more than we do, and can do so much more than we can. We think what we can accomplish will not mean much in the scheme of things. We may even believe that we need to work harder to accomplish great things for God in order to belong.

We are told we will receive our inheritance in the Kingdom of God because we fed the hungry, provided drink to the thirsty, welcomed the stranger, clothed the naked, and visited the sick and imprisoned. And, as we were compassionate and ministered to the least of these in this world, we were ministering directly to God.

Little things do matter, and God entrusts us with these. Each of us is asked to be welcoming, forgiving and loving to the sick, the marginalized, the poor, the widows, the orphans, the homeless, the disadvantaged, the hungry, and those who are different from us.

On judgment day, God probably won't ask us how much we earned. We make it so difficult to be active participants in God's family. All that we have belongs to God and should be used to care for God's family. Each of us is called to tend to the family. When we use our gifts and talents to the glory of God, we are ministering to the children of the family. "Truly, I say to you, as you did this to one of least of these my children, you did it to me."

In all that you do for the children of God, look and see Jesus Christ in their faces and remember that you, a faithful servant, are filling the needs of the family of God.

God bless you in your caring for God's children of all ages.

Adult Education News

Our plans are continuing to fall into place as we focus on Sunday, September 17. Pastor Mark, Pastor Bill, and Father Rich Rozinski from St. Thomas More parish in Elgin, have met to prepare for our Lutheran/Catholic dialogue.

Meeting from 3-5 on that Sunday afternoon, with Pastor Mark as moderator, Pastor Bill and Father Rich will engage in conversation based on questions submitted by members of both congregations. This is a part of our Reformation 500 anniversary, and it demonstrates how far we've come from the mutual condemnations of the 16th century. Catholics and Lutherans have been in dialogue with each other for over 40 years, and these conversations have borne much fruit. No longer are we calling the Pope the Antichrist. And no longer are they referring to Martin Luther as "a devil in monk's clothing." Instead there have been respectful conversations about the role of Peter in the church, justification by grace through faith, the role of good works in our life of faith, and the place of Mary, Mother of our Lord. We hope to continue that kind of dialogue. While there certainly are things about which we still don't agree, we can nevertheless talk about those things without threat of violence, and we can look to the future with great hope because of those things we agree upon. So come join us! It should be a fun afternoon!

Ministry Musings

WHEN

There have been times in my life where God seems distant, unapproachable, maybe even non-existent; and I would guess that is true for many of us. A world tragedy has occurred, or a personal one. One more senseless shooting, one more illness, one more job loss, one more death in our lives and we begin to ask God...when. When Lord will this violence end? When Lord, will tragedy stop striking? When Lord, will my loved one be healed? When Lord, will our finances make sense? When Lord, will it ever stop?

Growing up in a violent, alcoholic home; trying to keep a financially iffy business afloat; continuing to live after my husband's sudden death; moving across country to start over; dealing with possible serious illness or injury to my children or grandchildren; all these things have made me cry our when Lord??? Are you really there? And if so, when will you listen, act, heal, save?

Sometimes it is like late winter, when I am so very tired of cold and snow and dead looking trees. I long for the first signs of spring. But it is March and the winter seems deeper than it was in January and I cry, "Is summer ever coming? When will this long awful winter end?"

At these times in our lives, even our faith seems to fail. Although there may have been instances when we have heard or felt God's presence in a real, strong way, we may begin to doubt if those times ever existed or were simply our imagination. We may begin to lose our ability to sustain our belief in God or in his compassion or sovereign power. If 'God is in control', when is he going to act? We may wonder if we will ever regain that strong sure trust we once experienced? Will I ever rejoice again? When will I find joy, in life; in God? We may rage at God and blame him and that is ok. When we rage, we are at least believing that he exists to rage at. And when there are no words, the Spirit "helps us in our weakness" and "intercedes for us with groans that words cannot express". (Romans 8:26)

Psalm 42 is a song of desperation, grasping faith and eventually, hope. The psalmist asks, "have you forgotten me? Why must I go on mourning?". The answer is, "Hope in the lord, for I will again praise him.". The answer to when may not be now or even soon, but someday. The time will come again, someday just like spring does every year. Just like when we think we can't tolerate another day of winter, the first few signs of spring emerge so too when we think we can't hold onto God for one more moment, the first signs of new life emerge.

So, hold your when before God along with how long, where, and even why. Know that just like pushing a muscle to the point of ache is how to strengthen it, sometimes holding onto our faith to the point of unfulfillment makes it stronger. God is here with us, even when we don't see or hear him, ready to answer our whens with his promises of love and presence.

QUILTING WEEKEND

While talking & laughing we enjoy our work that sends these quilts out through Lutheran World Relief to bring warmth and joy to those who receive them. Some of these quilts are also donated to Turning Point Women and Children Shelter, Exodus Refugees & others.

We will be having our Quarters for Quilts campaign along with our quilt dedication on July 8 & 9, collecting donations as we do each year for battling. This means we can make stronger and more beautiful quilts from your generous gifts and with the help of Thrivent.

CHRISTMAS IN JULY IS COMING!

What is it you ask? Your Reformation Committee is offering beautiful Christmas ornaments from Hungary which celebrate the 500 th anniversary of Martin Luther's 95 Theses and the start of the Lutheran Church. The ornament is decorated with the Luther Rose and the dates 1517 and 2017. This ornament will be available only on July 22 and 23. We were able to get 125 of them from Bronner's in Michigan.

The cost of the ornament is $15 with all proceeds going to LSSI. LSSI is the Lutheran Social Services of Illinois transforming lives for 150 years (1867 – 2017). It is a nonprofit social service organization of the three Illinois synods of the Evangelical Lutheran church. It is the largest statewide social service provider serving over 70,000 across Illinois in 2016!!! It serves children and families with adoption, foster care, head start, and residential help. It helps individuals with alcohol/drug treatments, detox, and group homes. Mental health services offer counseling, welcoming center, building family foundations, case management for mental illness. There is also a Prisoner and Family ministry component. Seniors have options for care, support, and residential options. Remember that 70,000 people were helped last year by LSSI. Due to the Illinois budget crisis, this organization is struggling to meet the increasing need.

Let's celebrate the Reformation and LSSI's work. Buy a beautiful ornament during Christmas in July.

Not only will you have a beautiful ornament to cherish for another 500 years but you will be helping LSSI continue to serve the needy in our community.

UPDATE ON STUBBS FAMILY

Update on Stubbs family ( the missionaries we help sponsor):

Carol Stubbs is undergoing the most critical part of her treatment for leukemia at the present time at Froedtert Hospital in Milwaukee. They have completely destroyed her immune system and are now reintroducing her own cancer free stem cells to rebuild that same immune system. She is extremely vulnerable to outside infections. They are asking for our continuing prayers in the coming week as these cells take hold, multiply and hopefully put her in remission.

From The Word

Who is building your house? It's a good question to ask in our performance-based and status-oriented world. It's important that we take stock of how often we take control of the building process, causing us to parent in ways that manipulate our kids to measure up to societal standards rather than the standards God has set out so clearly in His Word. How often do we fall into the trap of endeavoring to make ourselves, our kids, and our parenting look good to others, rather than being pleasing to God?

The first full sentence of Psalm 127 never says that raising kids isn't hard work. Rather, it's the practice of parenting outside of God's will, way and blessing that winds up being fruitless. This even applies to Christian parents who so earnestly want to see their kids live in faithfulness to Christ, but who do so by working to bring about behavioral conformity that appears good on the outside, rather than waiting on God's Spirit to bring about deep-seated life-giving heart-change.

In his Everyday Prayers, Scotty Smith writes these words that we should all pray for ourselves: "You've rescued me from parental 'laboring in vain' – assuming a burden you never intended parents to bear. Father, only you can reveal the glory and grace of Jesus to our children. Only you can give anyone a new heart. Oh, the arrogant pride of thinking that by my 'good parenting' I can take credit for what you alone have graciously done in the lives of my

YOUTH CULTURE HOT QUOTE

"I had never posted a photo of my son, and I decided to post a shot of the back of his head, and almost as soon as I'd done it, I wished that I hadn't. I felt like I had broken some kind of a seal in inviting people into my life." - Anne Hathaway, discussing how she felt after posting a photo of her son on Instagram, in an interview for Jezebel's The Muse, April 3, 2017

HACKING INTO YOUR KID'S BRAIN

Last month, 60 Minutes ran a story on what's become known as "brain hacking." In an interview with former Google product manager Tristan Harris, the show pulled back the curtain on how Silicon Valley programmers are engineering smartphones, apps, and social media to get users addicted. In other words, that need we feel to constantly be checking our devices didn't just happen by chance. Rather, our devices have been engineered to trigger neurological and bio-chemical responses that make us feel this need. Harris says, "They (developers and programmers) want you to use it in particular ways and for long periods of time. Because that's how they make their money."

Just as the constant use of our devices can rewire our brains and cause electronic addiction, changing one's habits can undo these addictions, leading to decreased anxiety and a more stewardly use of our time.

Because our children and teens are particularly vulnerable to these strategies, we must run interference by setting borders and boundaries on what, when, and how often they engage with their devices. Offer alternative activities that get them to see the great

TURNING TO MARIJUANA FOR ANXIETY

Anxiety has reached epidemic proportions among our children, teens, and young adults. Late last year, Time magazine ran a cover story addressing the issue. It was titled, "Anxiety, Depression, and the Modern Adolescent." It's now reported that anxiety is the number one health concern being treated by healthcare centers on our college campuses. Our kids are stressing out to the breaking point. Of course, we need to address the causes of anxiety, do what we can to relieve it, and seek Scriptural guidance on the issue. We must also address the faulty coping mechanisms kids are choosing to engage in an effort to relieve stress. New research from Canada shows that teens are now turning to marijuana to relieve stress. Many of these youthful users think that marijuana is not dangerous or addictive. Jesus invites all of us to lay our burdens on him. He tells us to not be anxious about anything. Let's point our kids to the one true and lasting source of relief, Jesus Christ.

Trends

Multiple Dating Partners

As adults, we become aware of the radical nature of youth culture change when we talk to our kids about what we used to call dating. In the old days, if you were dating, you were dating someone. And if you started to date more than one person at a time, that was a sneaky trick known as cheating. A new study from Australia shows just how much the nature of dating has changed, which is a reality you may have already discovered through a conversation with a young person you know. The new study from eHarmony says that it's now normal to date six people at once. The results show that people are hesitant to commit to one person. Instead, people want to keep their dating options open. Experts are saying that dating apps might be what's behind this trend, as potential love interests are only a swipe or two away. Parents, we need to teach our kids that biblically, love is commitment, and that commitment is necessary for a God-honoring relationship.

Latest Research

Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance

The pressures, problems, challenges, and choices facing our kids are so vast, that our kids need us to help them navigate the potential difficulties of life. In our diligence, it's important to realize that kids who make poor choices in one area of their lives, are statistically more prone to make poor choices in other areas of their lives. If they are having trouble in one area of life, we need to become more alert by looking to see if there might be trouble in another area. For example, the Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System tells us that high school students who attempt to control their weight by engaging in unhealthy behaviors like fasting, purging, or using diet aids, are also more likely to have substance abuse problems. In other words, the discovery of one problem, might indicate a variety of additional problems. God has stewarded us with our children. Good stewardship includes diligence.

QUICK STATS

- e-Cigarette use among high school students has increased 900% from 2011 to 2015. (U.S. Surgeon General Report)
- Only about 7% of high school students said they used indoor tanning in 2015, down from almost 16% of students in 2009. (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention)
